18 Plaintiff,
19 v ORDER
20 D-LINK SYSTEMS, INC,
21 Defendant.

23
24 The parties in the above related cases request the 25 court's assistance in resolving a discovery dispute detailed in 26 their respective letters of April 17, 2007. Doc ##394-395 (03-2177 27 case); Doc #241 (05-0098 case). 3Com Corp alleges willful
28 infringement in both cases. Patent Local Rule 3-8 requires certain

1 disclosures where an alleged infringer intends to rely on an
2 "opinion of counsel" defense. Specifically, Patent Local Rule 3-8 3 requires disclosure of (1) the opinion, (2) any documents for which 4 the party agrees attorney-client or work product protection has 5 been waived and (3) a privilege log identifying any other document 6 that the party is withholding on the grounds of attorney-client or 7 work product protection. The rule exempts from the logging 8 obligation any identification of those documents "authored by 9 counsel acting solely as trial counsel."

10 3Com seeks these disclosures now, pursuant to the 11 deadline set forth in Rule 3-8. D-Link Systems, Inc and Realtek
12 Semiconductor Corp (collectively "defendants") propose bifurcation 13 of the issue of willfulness so that the parties may benefit from 14 the pending Federal Circuit opinion in In re Seagate Technology,
15 LLC. Alternatively, defendants seek postponement of their Rule 3-8 16 disclosures until as late as reasonably possible in light of the 17 current trial date.

18 In In re Seagate Technology, LLC, the Federal Circuit has 19 invited briefing on whether a party's assertion of the advice of 20 counsel defense should extend waiver of the attorney-client
21 privilege to communications with that party's trial counsel. See 22 Doc #234 (05-00098), Ex A. The circuit cited to its previous 23 ruling In re EchoStar, 448 F3d 1294 (Fed Cir 2006), which goes 24 beyond Patent Local Rule 3-8 by requiring that communications with 25 trial counsel concerning an asserted opinion must not only be 26 logged but must also be produced. Seagate will also consider the 27 Federal Circuit's prior decision in Underwater Devices, Inc v
28 Morrison-Knudsen Co, 717 F2d 1380 (Fed Cir 1983), which addresses

1 the statutory duty of care once an infringer is put on notice of 2 another's patent rights.

3 3Com argues that defendants should make their Rule 3-8
4 disclosures now because, if the Federal Circuit overrules EchoStar, 5 defendants will not have disclosed any information that they would 6 not already have had to disclose. Doc #394 at 2. Defendants argue 7 that awaiting the Seagate decision will permit them to make an 8 informed decision on whether to rely on an advice of counsel
9 defense in the first place. Doc #395 at 2. The court agrees. So 10 long as the scope of privilege waiver and the scope of the 11 statutory duty of care remain unknown, defendants should not be 12 required to produce otherwise privileged information. This is 13 particularly true where the Federal Circuit is expected to clarify 14 the law on these issues in a matter of months. (The Federal 15 Circuit has scheduled oral argument in Seagate for June 7, 2007.)
16 Moreover, 3Com does not claim any prejudice from the delay, and 17 defendants' proposal will not require modification of the trial
18 date.

19 Accordingly, defendants may postpone their Patent Local 20 Rule 3-8 disclosures until the earlier of November 1, 2007 or 30
21 days after the Federal Circuit's ruling in Seagate.

22
23 SO ORDERED.
